VC10X PLAYBOOK · CHECKLIST

The Fundraising Checklist

35 steps for raising a first venture fund, organized by the seven stages of a raise, from testing demand before you quit to the final close.

From the VC10X playbook How to Raise a Venture Fund, built from on-record conversations with emerging managers, a fundraising adviser and allocators.

Before you launch

Work through stages 1 to 4. Anything you can't tick is your work list before the first LP meeting.

During the raise

Use stages 5 to 7 and the weekly tracker at the end. Measure conversations and introductions, not dollars.

AT A GLANCE

The seven stages

Skipping a stage rarely saves time; it usually shows up later as a stalled raise.

#	STAGE	THE QUESTION TO ANSWER	WHAT GOOD LOOKS LIKE
1	Before you quit	Is there a fund here?	Soft commitments you've tested, and a few deals done with your own money
2	Positioning	Why you, and not an established firm?	A specialization and a story only you can tell
3	Fund size and structure	What's the right Fund I?	Big enough to prove the strategy, small enough to close
4	Who to target	Which LPs will actually back a first fund?	A short list of LPs that fit your size, stage and story
5	Outreach	How do you get the meeting?	Warm intros, common ground, and many conversations started at once
6	Meetings and momentum	How do you keep LPs moving?	A next step agreed at the end of every call
7	Closing	How do you get to final close?	Several closes, a clear date, and a steady weekly process

Test before you leap

Soft commitments and a few warehoused deals tell you whether there's a fund here.

Batch your outreach

Twenty conversations started together build momentum; two a week don't.

Close what you have

A first close lets you invest, and shows hesitant LPs the fund is real.

STAGE 1 OF 7

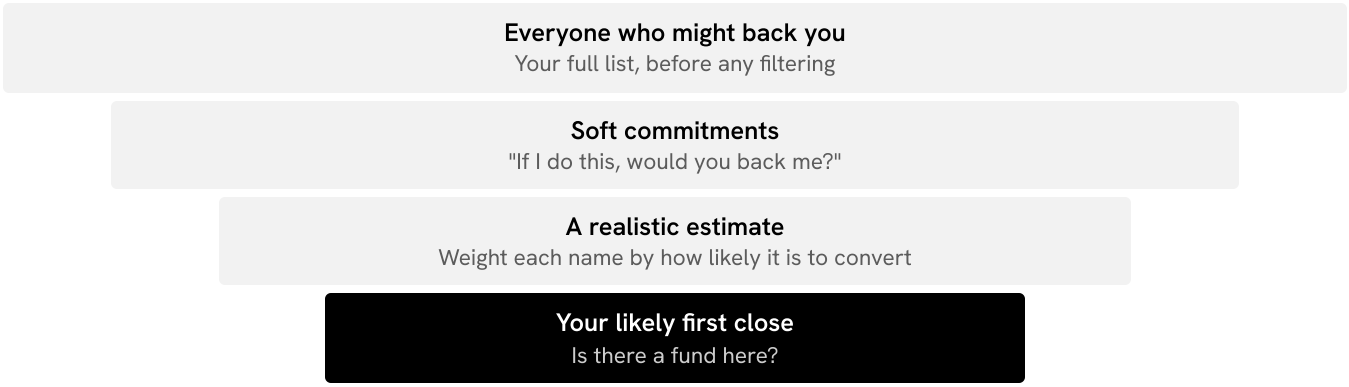

Before you quit

Is there a fund here?

What good looks like: Soft commitments you've tested, and a few deals done with your own money

- [ ] 1 List everyone who might back you, with a soft-commitment amount for each.
- [ ] 2 Estimate what share will convert at a first close.
- [ ] 3 Make two or three investments with your own money that match the strategy.
- [ ] 4 Budget for at least a year of costs before management fees arrive.
- [ ] 5 Decide how you'll fund the management company in the meantime.

THE NETWORK TEST, BEFORE YOU RESIGN

The steps Kevin Moore took over 6 to 12 months before launching.

STAGE 2 OF 7

Positioning

Why you, and not an established firm?

What good looks like: A specialization and a story only you can tell

- [ ] 6 Write your positioning in one sentence no established firm could say.
- [ ] 7 Explain why your background leads to this strategy.
- [ ] 8 Open your deck with your story, not your résumé.
- [ ] 9 Show what the firm looks like by Fund IV.
- [ ] 10 Cut any theme you can't show you knew before it was popular.

STAGE 3 OF 7

Fund size and structure

What's the right Fund I?

What good looks like: Big enough to prove the strategy, small enough to close

- [ ] 11 Work out the smallest fund that proves the strategy, and why.
- [ ] 12 Check the size against your check sizes, ownership targets and reserves.
- [ ] 13 Decide your GP commitment, and whether it's cash or funded from fees.
- [ ] 14 Engage fund administration, audit and legal counsel.
- [ ] 15 Decide solo or partnership, and how you'll cover what you can't do yourself.

STAGE 4 OF 7

Who to target

Which LPs will actually back a first fund?

What good looks like: A short list of LPs that fit your size, stage and story

- [ ] 16 Write your ideal LP profile: type, check size, sector link, appetite for first funds.
- [ ] 17 Build a target list that fits that profile.
- [ ] 18 Find each LP's minimum check before the first meeting.
- [ ] 19 Check funds of funds' own fundraising timing.
- [ ] 20 Keep a separate list of large LPs to meet for later funds.

STAGE 5 OF 7

Outreach

How do you get the meeting?

What good looks like: Warm intros, common ground, and many conversations started at once

- [ ] 21 Send your target list to your network and ask for specific introductions.
- [ ] 22 Ask other GPs and existing LPs who they can introduce you to.
- [ ] 23 Write first emails around common ground, not the fund.
- [ ] 24 Start around 20 conversations within the same couple of weeks.
- [ ] 25 Publish something that lets LPs hear your story before you meet.

STAGE 6 OF 7

Meetings and momentum

How do you keep LPs moving?

What good looks like: A next step agreed at the end of every call

- [ ] 26 Use the first meeting to establish fit, and listen more than you talk.
- [ ] 27 Plan what each of the first three meetings will cover.
- [ ] 28 End every call with a dated next step.
- [ ] 29 Have your track record, deal list, references and memos ready.
- [ ] 30 Complete a standard due diligence questionnaire before you're asked.

EACH MEETING EARNS THE NEXT · BASED ON MATT CURTOLO'S ADVICE

Meeting 1
Establish fit. Listen more than you talk.
→
Meeting 2
Add context.
→
Meeting 3
Share deeper information.
→
A decision
Yes, or a clear no.

WHAT STALLS A RAISE

Meeting 1
Followed by the whole data room.
→
The LP has everything
No reason to reach back out.
→
The mid-funnel trap
Two meetings, and nothing prompts a decision.

STAGE 7 OF 7

Closing

How do you get to final close?

What good looks like: Several closes, a clear date, and a steady weekly process

- [ ] 31 Hold a first close as soon as you can start investing.
- [ ] 32 Decide what early LPs receive for committing first.
- [ ] 33 Set weekly targets for conversations and introductions.
- [ ] 34 Set a close date, communicate it and stick to it.
- [ ] 35 Plan quarterly reporting before the final close.
